THIS is the anniversary of the birth of Niccolò Machiavelli in 1469. The author of "The Prince" and the "Discourses" inaugurated the modern School of Scientific Politics. He believed in a policy based on the natural imperfection of man. Neither of his great books was published during his lifetime.

And can you imagine a man daring to dissipate in dissipation's last surviving form—can you imagine a man daring to smoke in the parlor family once more.

of bread and gold. I learned of a wonderful Y. M. C. A. building in a Connecticut town that proves most of the things I have said. The building is a masterpiece of carpentry and the furnishings and many of the rules were given by a fine old woman who lived in the building and spent her heart beat for the boys of the place. The building itself is fine and the people who live in it are fine, and so are the furnishings. No affairs are ever given for ladies here. The Y. M. C. A. is run by the boys by the donor boys that here man-may smoke at times and at any place in the building.

"If I am expected to 'infer' the character of the occupants, I don't have that right," said Mr. Hartline. "The new homes will remember the old."

Where one has but a tiny apartment and has to make the most of it, it is not surprising that one plans to have a parlor instead of coming home to a room full of delicate rods and orchid furniture, equipped with a piano, a bookcase, library or living room to stretch out in while Mrs. Joe puts

An eminent pianist was about to give a recital in a large hall, and the pianist's wife, who was staggered up to the door and sensed a threat. "You cannot insist the official in charge," she said, "is not a pianist."

"I paid for my ticket!" asked the man. "Isn't it in order?" "It's right," replied the pianist.

"But all wrong," the man is intimated. "Intoxicated? Of course I'm intoxicated! If I want to do so, I would come to a piano recital!"

The image consists of two separate black and white photographs of women in early 20th-century fashion. The left photograph shows a woman standing, facing slightly to the left but looking towards the camera. She is wearing a long, patterned dress with a wide, decorative belt. The dress has a high neckline and long sleeves. She is also wearing a matching patterned shawl or wrap over her shoulders. Her hair is styled in a short, wavy bob. The photograph is framed by a decorative, arched border. The right photograph shows a woman standing, facing slightly to the right but looking towards the camera. Success
By BRUCE BOLDEN, M. D.

V There can be no doubt that success in life is definitely related to good health.

But in thinking of health, people often think only of bodily health. Health both of body and mind is what success depends on.

One who has a really good mind would never become an alcohol addict—or any other kind of an addict.

My mother says that I should stick to this one, as he is the better of the two, just because he is religious. The first one is jolly and outspoken, but a little rough, and my mother does not care for him. Can you help me?

I CERTAINLY cannot advise you to do anything that you do not love, however worthy it may be. On the other hand, roughly speaking, I think that you and I perhaps you mean only that this should be done in a certain manner, that he is of the "rough district" type, etc. that I should think that you should think of your mother to become reconciled to her, and that you should be indications of your own heart.

The first state that the man who does not smoke tobacco has a tremendous advantage in the race of life over the man who smokes. The writer would emphasize the very great value of the "forfeited" nutrient, and the "forfeited" nutrient, to distance to disease, and, third, he would emphasize the importance of keeping the teeth in good repair.

VENUS and the moon are in conjunction this evening. The moon (Diana) is in her most fascinating aspect that of a silvery bow, while Venus glows like a great ball of quicksilver, shedding the sunlight. Which is the more beautiful? Together they make a celestial spectacle that never fails to draw millions of admiring eyes skyward.

Very little was said about the passing thought. Appreciation of the fearful situation into which her little sister had walked blindly and selfishly, made her heart like lead.

"Isn't it past the time Mildred should be at home?" Mrs. Higgins inquired, lingering in the room, nervously anxious to talk.

"She won't be home to dinner," was the answer. As once before, Honora must lie to protect Mildred.

"I know," she demanded.

"I had to stop at the station for a moment after I left you. Chandlee was at the ticket window. He was asking for two tickets to Hartford. Fool that I am, I never thought of Mildred in that connection. I was only glad he was going away—I

"Well, then, since there's only you and me here this evening, I think I'll tell Katie we'll just have supper instead of dinner, and I'll make some of my special waffles such as you like," the kindly housekeeper says gently.

"That will be pleasant," was the absent-minded rejoinder.

Honora remained seated until she heard the kitchen door close behind Mrs. Higgins; then she ran noiselessly downstairs and took the telephone receiver from its hook.

"Poor sort of a place,"

"I am going there for Milly!"

Honora made the announcement abruptly, springing to her feet.

"I shall go with you," the man said.

"But your mother"—Honora began.

"I will drive home and tell her I am called away for a few hours. I will be back here for you in ten minutes. How soon can you be ready?"

"By the time you get back."

"We can catch the six-fifteen then," Arthur said, glancing at his

"Oh, that's all right! If Arthur's mother needs you you must go, of course—especially as Milly's too busy to go to her."

Higgins's misunderstanding of the situation.

"Good-by," she said, as she heard the automobile stopping at the gate. "If I am late, do not worry; I have my latchkey with me."

Then she shut the kitchen door.

"What will you do with your car?" she asked ARTHUR on the way downtown.

"I phoned to a man at the garage by the station to be there for 10 o'clock," he said.

"Then we can get it out when we return."

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Ma.
To the Honorable Alton D. Baker, Secretary of War.

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

Country Would Like to See the President Come Home

We hope that President Wilson will soon be on his way home. Also that the remainder of the American troops in Europe will soon be on their way home.

Also that with the return of our Government and our army and our navy, there will be an end to entanglements in Europe's politics, quarrels and wars.

It seems to us that the place for the Government of the United States to be located is in the capital of the United States.

It seems to us that the right place for American soldiers to be is on American soil.

We had a job to do in Europe, which the German military ruling caste compelled us to do.

That job our soldiers have done.

They enlisted, or were drafted, with one sole purpose, which was to defeat the military power of Germany and Austria-Hungary and bring about peace.

They have accomplished that purpose, so far as the defeat of Germany's military power is concerned, and they ought to be permitted to come home.

The President and his selected advisers went to Paris last December to make peace, and it would seem to a plain, everyday, common sense American mind that they have already had more than enough time to do that work.

Our army in France started upon the final offensive against Germany late in the Summer and finished the job early in November.

It certainly would seem that if the army could defeat the powerful German fighting machine in four months' time the Peace Congress ought to be able to write and sign a few thousand words of negotiation in less than six months' time.

But however that may be, one thing is certain:

The American people will all be glad when they hear that the President and his advisers have sailed for home.

And the American people will be more than glad when they hear that every American soldier in Europe has been ordered home.

With the President of the United States and a large part of his Cabinet and nearly two million American fighting men still in Europe, the folks at home are beginning to feel lonesome.

They would like to see the White House occupied again.

And in more than a million homes anxious fathers and anxious mothers are waiting the return of those sons who went out to fight, as they were told, in order to overthrow German militarism, and who, as it seems to their fathers and their mothers, ought to be on their way back, since they have so completely accomplished the object for which they were sent across the Atlantic.

We have long thought, and we shall not soon cease to think, that the proper place for American Government and the American army is the United States, and that the sooner our Government and our army cut loose from participation in European affairs, and the sooner we all get back to the work of rebuilding and to minding our own business, the sooner will the economic and industrial scars of war be healed and the better off in every way will the country be.

The other day Senator Johnson remarked ironically that he hoped it would soon again be respectable to be American.

We will add to that the hope that it will very soon be disgraceful to be anything but American and that our people will not only have in mind the welfare and the prestige and the good repute of America, but that they will have nothing else in mind.

Government Should Retain Growing Merchant Marine

The government has wisely rejected all bids made by private firms to buy at bargain prices some of the coastwise vessels now being used in the war. The ships cost the Shipping Board nearly $100,000. The best offer obtained for them was about $48 a ton. This is the best that can be done under Chairman Hurley's plan of selling a part of our now public-owned mercantile marine, and the small vessels offered for sale last week are coasters, and the bids were to purchase them outright.

Chairman Hurley's plan for the large ocean-going vessels is to permit private firms or individuals to buy at "the market price" new ships by paying 25 per cent. down in cash and the balance within five years, with interest.

It seems to us that this might be a very good bargain for speculators and a very poor one for the government, for the reason that ships are now so scarce and ocean freights so high that new ships can pay for themselves in a few months. Rates will naturally decline and profits diminish as the shipyards catch up with the world's needs, replacing the nineteen million tons net of ships sunk by submarines.

The government would then have turned back to its ships on whose use speculators, dealing on margin, had made handsome profits.

About two-thirds of all the American ships now engaged in foreign trade are owned by the government.

Some of these ships cost $250 a ton to build. Before the war good freight steamers were bought new as low as $38 a ton and were always obtainable under $50 a ton. But in spite of the heavy cost of ships in war time the new ones will pay for themselves in profits in the next two or three years. They will also carry the American flag and American exports to every part of the world.

The new ships were built with the people's money as a part of the government program for a government merchant marine. If any of these ships are sold outright, they are likely to be put into foreign register, under a foreign flag. They should be kept under American register and used to extend American commerce.

There are some politicians in this country who would be willing to sell even the ships of our navy. It is the duty of the American people and the American press to prevent the sacrifice of our merchant ships and to compel these politicians to think of America first.

THIS FINISHING "TOUCH"
Only a week left to finish the job.
Job of the Victory Loan.
Think of the "Doughboy," Marine and the "Gob."
The cleanup they made of their part of the job.
Took the big end of the log "Over There."
Leaving the small end to us over here.
They won the war and protection for us.
All we need do is to pay for the muss.
Back up the "Doughboy," Marine and the "Gob."
Don't be a "squealer." Go through with the job.
Finish the Victory Loan.

EXIT NUMBER
United States Naval Base Number 25 at Halifax will cease to exist after June 1.

STEAM TRAWLER WAIVES brought to the South Boston Fish Pier a rainbow bird, which flew aboard exhausted near Sable Island. It rejoices in black body, red bill, yellow legs and blue spots on the head. It is of partridge size, with long claws, and has the pier guessing.

PARTICULAR PIG
Hull man named Henry bought a pig only five weeks old, but sagacious. The ham and bacon "prospects" was brought over the road for a quarter of a mile in a burley bag and was put in a pen which Henry had not cleaned out from last year's occupancy. Henry went in the house to dinner; planning to clean the pen that afternoon. But when he returned to the pen the pig was gone. Inquiry showed that the porker, escaping from the pen, had trotted back home over the highway. The cat family of finding a way back to an old home was well known to Henry. But he was surprised at the path-finding resources of his pig. He concluded this was an unusually intelligent pig, also that its feelings were hurt at its unkempt pen. "Darn funny," says Henry, "but I've cleaned out the pen, put the pig back in it and hope he'll be satisfied now. Some pig!"

WORRYING TOO MUCH ABOUT THE FUTURE?

Isn't your uncontrolled imagination the cause of much unhappiness to you?
If not, as you say, then why so concerned over every little ache and pain, as if it were the sure forerunner of a serious affliction?
If not, how do you account for your tendency when looking ahead, always to see yourself in a helpless condition, or on the road to it?
Every year you find yourself more and more the slave of thoughts which are the result of a too vivid imagination.
A morbid imagination lessens happiness and whatever lessens happiness tends aid to ill health.
Of course you should heed the warnings of wisdom and avoid dangers.
But it is no way to avoid danger, to sit down and mope or cry and let it come on and overtake you.
Unless you take proper means to assist nature, your ailments are going to grow more serious, you will feel more pain and you will be more and more handicapped in the fight for health.
Mental health is the most important first-aid to recovery from illness. Get control of your mind powers; don't let your upper brain hurry you to a state of helplessness when it might be the means of hurrying you to health.

Boston Up in the Air? Well, Just Look Here!

How Do We Look "as Others See Us?"—Up Above the World So High! FOUR PAGES OF PICTURES—Wonderful Pictures Taken From an Airplane by a Government Photographer. An Exclusive Feature Tomorrow of the Sunday Advertiser and American. OLD SOUTH CHURCH Reaches Important Milestone. "THE SAFETY OF THE WORLD TODAY LIES IN AN ORDERLY ADVANCEMENT Toward Better Lives for Working People Everywhere." Declares SAMUEL GOMPERS. "IN TWO YEARS AT MOST, One of My Blood WILL REIGN." Predicts the Former Kaiser. Former Premier ASQUITH of Great Britain PLEADS FOR IRISH FREEDOM. And Many Other Important Features, of Both Local and National and International Interest.

Boston has been "all up in the air" this week. We've held our collective breath over the marvelous acts of the "Flying Circus" and we had an equal thrill at the sight of our first "Zep," bombarding the city with "W" literature and flying so low it looked as though it would clip the tops of trees and the crosses from church steeples. We've craned our necks until they acquired a permanent "stitch." And the remark most prevalent was—"How would you like to be up there?" HOW DOES BOSTON LOOK FROM AN AIRPLANE? Well, tomorrow we show you JUST HOW—in FOUR PAGES OF REMARKABLE PICTURES as ever were taken from an airship. Historic Boston in wonderful panoramas—different clear views significantly grouped; where America started her fight for freedom; and where, in this present war she built huge docks to "carry on" for world freedom; the old fort on Castle Island; Braves Field, Commonwealth Avenue and the Charles River basin, with all Boston in the distance; and so forth, and so forth. Words cannot describe these pictures—and they represent some remarkable feats in flying, too.

These photographs were taken for the Boston Sunday Advertiser-American by Sergeant Gordon A. Burnham, U. S. A., official government photographer.

FOR 250 YEARS THE OLD SOUTH CHURCH has stood a beacon of light and a tower of strength in the religious and civic life of the city and State. Its history is inextricably bound up with that of every phase of the life of the community through the troublous days of the birth of our nation, on down to now. Tomorrow the celebration of this important birthday will begin with appropriate services; and it is well for us to pause a moment and turn back the pages of history with those who worship there. This we do tomorrow.

"Little in the world remains as it was before the great fires of war swept over the earth," says SAMUEL GOMPERS, in a splendid and arresting article tomorrow, written especially for this paper. "WE MUST BUILD ANEW!" They listened to Gompers at the Peace Conference, where he was chief advisor on international labor questions, until recently. Tomorrow you will listen to his authoritative statements in this paper. "Russia stands before our gaze like a flaming torch of warning. WHERE THERE IS NO ORGANIZED LABOR MOVEMENT IN AMERICA, devoted to American ideals and unshaken in its faith in progress through the ORDERLY PROCESS OF DEMOCRACY, there would be BOLSHIEVISM IN AMERICA. Organized labor is the hope and safety of America. BUT IF THERE SHOULD BE ANY GREAT DENIAL of the just aspirations of the working people as voiced by their organized movement there would be a DANGEROUS FLOW TOWARD BOLSHIEVISM HERE."

"IN TWO YEARS AT MOST, one of my blood will AGAIN RULE GERMANY, and my people will REJOICE!" Those were the last words of William HOHENZOLLERN before he fled from Spa, to Holland, after he was forced to abdicate the throne, according to Colonel Von Bruckdorf-Rantanen, formerly a member of the Kaiser's personal staff and a nephew to Germany's present Minister of Foreign Affairs. A dramatic true picture of the former Kaiser in his hours of extremity, faithfully giving his own words of prophecy as to WHAT MAY HAPPEN IN UNREPENTANT GERMANY.

The Rt. Hon. HERBERT ASQUITH, Former Prime Minister of Great Britain and Leader of the British Liberal Party, has come out as a STRONG SUPPORTER OF IRELAND. In a signed article published for the first time tomorrow, Asquith puts the case of Ireland into clear, concise words, and not only comes out himself for IRISH FREEDOM, but urges his strong party to make the giving of the "healing gift of freedom" to Ireland "an object of permanent urgency."

How a mad German airman RAIDED THE KRUPP PLANT, evaded all pursuit, buried his observer from the seat, fired upon his friend in a chase above the clouds, bombed the cities of his own land, and nearly brought Holland into the war—only to come to his own end amid the flaming wreckage of his machine, is as thrilling as any story that has come out of the war. Thrilling, and true—graphically told, tomorrow.

T. P. O'CONNOR COMMENTS ON THE FIUME INCIDENT. He sees in the INTERNATIONALIZATION of certain debated ground, not only that contested by Italy and the Slavo-Jugs, but Danzig and Constantinople also, the only hope of averting future causes of war and continual dissension. And he declares that the present attitude of Italy is due largely to her DISQUIETING INTERNAL SITUATION. "Bolshevism has taken root more in Italy than in any country outside Russia and Hungary," he declares, "and there is such extreme tension in Italy as would make it fatal for any ministry to climb down under a little bit on Italy's extreme demands."

M. PROTITCH, Premier of SERBIA, flays secret diplomacy, and heated terms declares that the Allied course has denied the national status of his country.

More of Rider Haggard's masterpiece of old Egypt, "Moon of Israel." Love enters the scene tomorrow, and complicates the story.

"Fine Feathers," in full color, forms the lovely cover of the Magazine Section. Painted by Henry Clive. "Nuff said."

Pretty, intimate story of the romance of Francis Burton Harrison, Governor-General of the Philippines, and his child bride-to-be, was as fashionable as now. But look who was there!

How "coolies" might spread a fearful death plague if the utmost precautions were not taken.

And fun, fun, fun! Four pages of Comics, and those two best-there-is pages, "As the Funmakers See the News," and "The Latest and Best in the World of Wit."
